INTRODUCTION

ADVANCED SWORDS & SORCERY is a pen and paper tabletop roleplaying game - an homage to the world's most popular fantasy roleplaying game. It has been designed to be mathless and streamlined while still retaining compatibility with its inspiration and the wide variety of old school supplemental materials that exist.

To play, all you need is the standard role playing dice, non-standard Zocchi dice if playing a Warlock, character sheets, and if so desired, miniatures for fictional positioning.

The core mechanic in ADVANCED SWORDS & SORCERY involves rolling a d20. In an unopposed check, a player must roll strictly below their relevant stat to succeed. If the check is opposed, then the player must Thread the Needle; they must roll a d20 that lands simultaneously below their relevant stat and above an opposing value. NPCs, monsters, traps, and other adversaries do not roll d20 checks, only damage; instead, players roll to avoid or mitigate monster attacks.

CHARACTER CREATION

Roll Stats

Every character has six stats: Charisma (CHA), Constitution (CON), Dexterity (DEX), Intelligence (INT), Strength (STR), and Wisdom (WIS). To assign stats when creating a character, roll dice six times and assign the results to your stats in the order above. Ask your Referee which of the following you will use:

EXTREME: Roll 3d20 and take the highest. This results in an average stat of about 15.5. Use this for overpowered PCs in heroic campaigns.

STANDARD: Roll 3d10 and add the highest two. This results in an average stat of about 13.5. Use this for campaigns where the PCs are remarkable people but not necessarily superhuman.

CLASSIC: Roll 3d6 and add all three. This results in an average stat of 10.5. Use this for PCs beginning of comparable power to any average schmuck in the world.

Choose a Class

A class is a character's specialization or role in the group. There are ten classes: Cleric, Druid, Dwarf, Elf, Fighter, Halfling, Magic-User, Paladin, Ranger, and Warlock. The character's class determines their Health Points (HP), Attack Value (AV) progression, permissible weapon damage dice, and abilities.

Purchase Equipment

Every character begins with 3d6×10 gold, clothes, and a free weapon as permitted by their class. The number of items a character can carry is their STR score.

The items listed in EQUIPMENT are not intended to be an exhaustive list of every item that can be purchased or sold.

Leveling Up

Characters level up by spending (not necessarily all at once) the amount of gold listed on Table I. Upon level up, you gain abilities and HP based on your class. You can also attempt to improve your stats. Pick a stat and roll a d20; if you roll higher than your score, you can increase that stat by 1. If you roll lower, you can try another stat, but note you can only increase at most three stats each time you level up.

TABLE I.: WEALTH REQUIRED TO SPEND TO LEVEL UP.

Level	Cost
2	500 gold
3	1,000 gold
4	2,000 gold
5	4,000 gold
6	8,000 gold
7	16,000 gold
8	32,000 gold
9	64,000 gold
10	128,000 gold

EQUIPMENT

Weapons are classified into three different groups based on the amount of damage they deal. The three groups are d8, d6, and d4. Any melee weapon can belong to any damage category. Ranged weapons can deal at most d6 damage.

TABLE II.: WEAPONS.

Type	Cost
d8	100 gold
d6	60 gold
d4	40 gold

Armor is also classified into three groups: light, medium, and heavy. The groups give a +1, +2, or +3 bonus, respectively, to checks to evade monster attacks. Shields are small (+1) or large (+2). A character's Armor Class (AC) is their DEX score + any bonus from armor and shields. Choice of class may restrict which armor and shields you may use.

TABLE III.: ARMOR AND SHIELDS.

Type	Cost
Light armor (+1), e.g., hides and leathers	50 gold
Medium (+2), e.g., chain mail	300 gold
Heavy (+3), e.g., plate	600 gold
Small shield (+1)	50 gold
Large (+2)	100 gold

Consumable items have a usage die. When you use an item, roll the corresponding usage die. If the result is a 1 or 2, the usage die is downgraded to the next lowest die: d20>d12>d10>d8>d6>d4. A roll of 1 or 2 on a d4 expends the consumable item. If no usage die is listed, the item has a single use.

TABLE IV.: CONSUMABLE ITEMS.

Item	Cost	Usage Die
Antipoison	15 gold	-
Arrows	10 gold	d10
Bandages	5 gold	-
Daily rations	5 gold	d4
Herbs: poultice, aroma, seasoning	10 gold	d8
Oil	2 gold	d6
Torch	1 gold	d6
Waterskin	1 gold	d6

Antipoison can cure or preemptively prevent one bout of poison/toxin. Bandages take time to apply, but heal d4 damage, d6 with poultice. A character that neglects their daily rations becomes Disadvantaged (see Advantage and Disadvantage) in all rolls and eventually dies.

TABLE V.: ADVENTURING GEAR.

Item	Cost
10 foot pole	1 gold
10 foot ladder	5 gold
50 foot rope	1 gold
Bedroll	1 gold
Flint & steel	3 gold
Lantern	10 gold
Mirror	5 gold
Ram	10 gold
Sack	1 gold
Spikes	1 gold
Tent	10 gold
Winter blanket	1 gold

Characters can employ hirelings to assist them in adventures. Hirelings demand a share of the wealth your character brings safely back to civilization. They are paid once the party arrives in a safe, familiar place. The adventurer is left with whatever wealth remains after dividing it among all their surviving hirelings.

TABLE VI.: HIRELINGS.

Hireling	Share
Animal handler	10%
Classed hireling	50%
Dungeoneer	15%
Guard	10%
Guide	10%
Lantern bearer	8%
Mercenary	20%
Porter	10%
Servant	5%

A classed hireling is generated like a player character. For a mercenary, assign the stats 12-11-10-10-9-9 in an order you choose, d8 HP, and 9 AV. Assign to all other hirelings the stats 10-10-9-9-9-9 as you choose, d6 HP, and 8 AV. Any equipment a hireling uses must be purchased by their employer. Only classed hirelings can level up.

Wealthy characters can invest in property. Purchasing the land and/or building is only one step towards maintaining a property. Money must also periodically be invested for maintenance and upkeep as well.

TABLE VII.: PROPERTY.

Property	Purchase Price	Monthly Upkeep Cost
Brewery & tavern	900 gold	75 gold
Castle	7,500 gold	550 gold
Crypt	2,000 gold	10 gold
Dungeon	1,750 gold	75 gold
Estate	4,000 gold	800 gold
Farm	2,000 gold	120 gold
Fort	6,000 gold	250 gold
Guild	2,750 gold	175 gold
House	1,300 gold	25 gold
Mansion	5,250 gold	375 gold
Monument	500 gold	5 gold
Palace	25,000 gold	2,500 gold
Temple	1,500 gold	75 gold
Vault	800 gold	75 gold
Villa	9,000 gold	1,500 gold
Watchtower	1,500 gold	75 gold
Waterfront	2,750 gold	225 gold

GAMEPLAY

During a player’s turn, their character may move and act. An action is, generally speaking, any interaction with the world: attacking, casting a spell, searching, talking, and so on. The Referee has final say in what can or cannot be done in a single turn, and some actions take multiple turns. A round is the cumulative total of all characters’ turns.

Explicit tracking of rounds and turns happens during combat and time-sensitive scenarios; outside of these circumstances, characters can act as they please, under Referee direction.

Movement

A character can move up to 30 feet in their turn. If they forgo their action, they may move an additional 30 feet.

Initiative

When combat is imminent, players roll a check against DEX; i.e., they attempt to roll a d20 under their DEX score. Those successful go before the enemy; those not go after.

Combat

When a character attacks an enemy, the player must Thread the Needle. Performing a melee or ranged attack, a player must roll below their AV, as determined by their class and level, and above the enemy's Hit Dice (HD). To attack with a spell, a player must roll below their spellcasting stat as determined by their class, and above the enemy's HD.

When an enemy attacks a character with melee or ranged, the player must Thread the Needle below their AC and above the enemy's HD. If the attack is magical, the player needs to roll a save for the relevant stat.

If an attack is successful, then damage is rolled. For a character, damage is rolled based on the weapon they are using. For a monster, damage is rolled based on their HD as described in the ADVERSARIES section.

Checks and Saves

In unopposed checks, a player must simply roll below the stat they are testing. The Referee will indicate which stat to use based on the action the character attempts.

If a character is asked to make a save to resist a spell, trap, effect, or so on, then they Thread the Needle above the HD of the adversary and below their relevant stat as described here.

Thread the Needle with:

CHA when the save is against charming effects.

CON when the save is against poison, disease, or death.

DEX when the save is against physical harm that can be dodged.

INT when the save is against spells and magic.

STR when the save is against physical harm that cannot be dodged.

WIS when the save is against deception and illusions.

Recovery

Characters can recover lost HP by bandaging their wounds, drinking health potions, casting certain spells, and resting. A character cannot surpass their maximum HP by mundane means.

Death

A character that reaches 0 HP is dying. They are unable to move or act in the current combat any longer. After combat has ended, the player must Thread the Needle below their CON stat and above the amount of damage below 0 their character has taken. If successful, the character is alive at d4 HP and can resume action, but with a scar or disfigurement. If the check fails, the character dies in a comrade's arms, though magic exists to raise the dead, if they had a soul.

Monsters that reach 0 HP get no such special privileges; they are immediately dead.

Advantage and Disadvantage

When the Referee determines that a task is particularly easy or hard given the circumstances, they may ask for a roll at Advantage or Disadvantage. For a roll at Advantage, roll twice; if at least one of the rolls is successful, then you have succeeded. For a roll at Disadvantage, roll twice; both rolls must be successful in order for you to succeed. Advantage and Disadvantage cancel each other in pairs.

Morale

When things go south for adventurers, as things so often do, adventurers rarely break under pressure, but hirelings do. In circumstances such as imminent defeat, total darkness, the death of a character, and so on, the Referee may ask players to make a morale check to retain their hirelings. In a morale check, players must Thread the Needle below their CHA score and above the hireling's morale score as listed on Table VIII. (If a hireling is particularly well-treated, their morale score may go down, at the discretion of the Referee, and vice versa: poor treatment raises morale score.) Each player should roll once; this single roll is the morale check for all their character's hirelings.

TABLE VIII.: HIRELING MORALE.

Hireling	Morale Score
Animal handler	5
Classed hireling	1
Dungeoneer	3
Guard	4
Guide	4
Lantern bearer	6
Mercenary	2
Porter	4
Servant	7

If the morale check fails for some or all present hirelings, those hirelings attempt to flee. If they cannot flee, they are useless until the danger has subsided.

During combat, if the tide of battle turns substantially in the characters' favor, monsters may also lose morale. If the Referee judges this to be the case, they should ask each character to Thread the Needle below their CHA score and above the HD of the strongest enemies. If at least half the party succeeds, the monsters flee, submit, or surrender. Referees should only ask for monster morale checks at most twice in a combat encounter; if the players fail twice, the monsters are fanatical and will fight to the death.

CLASSES

TABLE IX.: CLASS INFORMATION.

Class	Die	Weapons	Armor	Shield
Cleric	d8	d6	Medium	Large
Druid	d6	d4	Light	-
Dwarf	d8	d8	Heavy	Large
Elf	d6	d8	Medium	Small
Fighter	d10	d8	Heavy	Large
Halfling	d6	d6	Light	Small
Magic-User	d4	d4	Light	-
Paladin	d10	d8	Heavy	Large
Ranger	d8	d6	Medium	Small
Warlock	d4	d4	Light	-

Each class starts with their die + 4 HP. When a class levels up, they gain their die in HP. When a class gets a full night’s rest, they regain their die in HP.

The Weapons column indicates the highest damage die weapon the class can use. The Armor column indicates the heaviest type of armor the class can use. The Shield column indicates the largest type of shield the class can use.

If a chosen class has the ability to cast spells, then when the character casts a spell on an enemy and that enemy has a chance to resist the spell, the character must Thread the Needle above the HD of the enemy and below the relevant stat as described here.

Thread the Needle with:

CHA if you are a Paladin.

INT if you are an Elf, Magic-User, or Warlock.

WIS if you are a Cleric, Druid, or Ranger.

The Cleric

The secular world would call them zealots, but Clerics are indeed blessed with power. The Cleric is as much a scholar of their order as they are a knight. Clerics use their divine powers to help allies and repel the forces of darkness.

The Cleric has the following AV progression:

TABLE X.: CLERIC ATTACK VALUES.

Cleric Level	Attack Value (AV)
1	11
2	11
3	12
4	12
5	12
6	13
7	13
8	14
9	14
10	14

Clerics can “channel energy” to harm or to heal. The Cleric may heal an ally in sight for d6 health, or harm an enemy in sight for d6 damage, after Threading the Needle below WIS and above the enemy’s HD. Clerics may channel energy a number of times equal to their level each day.

A Cleric may brandish a symbol of authority/sanctity to “turn undead.” If the Cleric Threads the Needle below their WIS and above the HD of an undead, then 2d6 present undead of that kind flee from the Cleric for 2d6 rounds. If there are different kinds of undead present, the Cleric must turn them in order of ascending HD. In a single combat encounter, the Cleric may turn undead until one of their attempts fails.

The Cleric can cast spells from the divine spell list. When a Cleric levels up, they pray to their patron and are blessed with d4+2 spells that the patron chooses.

When the Cleric casts a spell, they roll a usage die based on their level and the level of the spell as given on Table XI. On a roll of 1 or 2, the usage die is downgraded, or if the die was a d4, the Cleric is out of spells of that level until the following day.

TABLE XI.: CLERIC SPELLS PER DAY.

Cleric Level	Spell usage die for each spell level
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1	d4	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-

10	d12	d12	d8	d8	d6	d6	d4	d4	d4

The Druid

Druids live in harmony with all of nature, existing in the balance between order and chaos. They hold plants, animals, the sun, and the moon as deities. Through their careful study and protection of the natural world, Druids are blessed with earthly magics and abilities.

The Druid has the following AV progression:

TABLE XII.: DRUID ATTACK VALUES.

6	10

Druids can sustain themselves off the land. Outside of civilization, a Druid need not consume daily rations, cannot be poisoned, and gains their level in HP when resting, in addition to their die.

Once per day, the Druid may devote an hour to cast any spell of their level or lower on the nature spell list as an involved and technical ritual. If they are interrupted, the spell fails.

The Druid can cast spells from the nature spell list. When a Druid levels up, they meditate in nature and are enlightened with d4+2 spells. Druids are social and will share the spells they know with ally Druids, but it takes time to study and perfect the art.

When the Druid casts a spell, they roll a usage die based on their level and the level of the spell as given on Table XIII. On a roll of 1 or 2, the usage die is downgraded, or if the die was a d4, the Druid is out of spells of that level until the following day.

TABLE XIII.: DRUID SPELLS PER DAY.

Druid Level	Spell usage die for each spell level

10	d12	d12	d8	d8	d6	d6	d4	d4	d4

The Dwarf

The Dwarfs are an indulgent coastal people; their love of all that is learned and refined extends from literature, playwriting, painting, and sculpting, to mathematics, philosophy, science, and polemology. Dwarfs are polytheistic, and delight in telling stories about the folly and hubris of their gods.

The Dwarf has the following AV progression:

TABLE XIV.: DWARF ATTACK VALUES.

Dwarf Level	Attack Value (AV)

2	11
3	12
4	12
5	13
6	13
7	14
8	14
9	15
10	15

A Dwarf's knowledge of science and medicine allows them to add their level to HP recovered when they bandage injured characters.

A Dwarf can inspire allies to greatness. At times of rest, the Dwarf may tell their friends a gripping myth or legendary tale. If a listener later finds themselves in similar circumstances to the myth, they may roll a check or save at Advantage. This can be performed once per myth told.

The Elf

The Elves are a dying race. Their people have been spread to the four winds. The ancient art of Elven study is nearly lost to time. The few desperate Elves that remain have made it their quest to preserve Elven culture, where both magic and might are equally revered. Elves adventure to recover ancient Elven artifacts, to spread the history of the Elves, and to educate the future generations of their spell-sword craft.

The Elf has the following AV progression:

TABLE XV.: ELF ATTACK VALUES.

2	11
3	12
4	13
5	13
6	14

8	15
9	16
10	17

The years of study and experience that Elves devote to their craft allows them to exert themselves in a desperate "surge." As many times per day as their level, if an Elf fails a save or check, they may describe how they reassess, readjust, or react to the situation, and reroll the die. An Elf may alternatively spend a surge to add their level to a damage roll.

An Elf can push themselves beyond the limits of their body and cast additional spells at a cost to their health. If an Elf has run out of spells for the day, they may cast additional spells at the cost of their level in permanent HP lost per spell.

The Elf can cast spells from the arcane spell list. An Elf learns one spell each time they level up, but can find more from spellbooks and spellcasters in the world. The number of spells an Elf can cast per day is listed on Table XVI..

The Fighter

From heroes of strength, valor, and glory, to fearsome bandit kings and marauders, Fighters are the brawn of a world where might makes right. A skilled Fighter fears no man; their raw power mixed with their delicate finesse makes a Fighter a fearsome killing machine.

The Fighter has the following AV progression:

TABLE XVII.: FIGHTER ATTACK VALUES.

Fighter Level	Attack Value (AV)

2	12
3	12
4	13
5	14
6	14
7	15
8	16
9	16
10	17

When a Fighter kills an enemy, they may attack another enemy within range. A Fighter may do this as many times as levels they have, so if a Fighter is level 3, they may attack up to four enemies in range, provided the first three attacks are killing blows.

If a Fighter fails a STR or DEX save and would be dealt damage, they can opt to destroy their shield, if they have one equipped, and ignore the damage.

The Halfling

Halflings are cunning tricksters and deviants. They prefer to deal with the riffraff underbelly of society, where they make connections and establish relationships with unsavory characters. A Halfling is not to be trusted, and never fights fair.

The Halfling has the following AV progression:

TABLE XVIII.: HALFLING ATTACK VALUES.

Halfling Level	Attack Value (AV)

2	12
3	12
4	12
5	13
6	13
7	13
8	13
9	14
10	14

If a Halfling successfully attacks an enemy from an advantageous position, they may do additional damage equal to their level.

Each time the Halfling levels up, they gain 3d6×their level gold worth of favors to collect. The favors can be used for anything agreed upon by player and Referee.

The Magic-User

Whether a born natural or a devoted student of the arts, a Magic-User has unearthly abilities at their very fingers. Magic-Users bend reality to their whims, and thus many obstacles become trivial to a creative Magic-User. Magic-Users think outside the box, using their spells and powers to circumvent problems and avoid confrontation.

The Magic-User has the following AV progression:

TABLE XIX.: MAGIC-USER ATTACK VALUES.

3	8
4	9
6	9
7	10
8	10
9	10
10	11

A Magic-User's deep understanding of the arcane arts allows them to unlock extreme magical power through "meta-magic." As many times per day as their level, a Magic-User can do the following: ignore the result of a spell's usage die roll, treat their level as double for the purposes of spell effects, reverse the effects of a spell, cast a spell discreetly, cast a spell without requirements, or cast two spells in one action.

Once per day, the Magic-User may devote an hour to cast any spell on the arcane spell list as an involved and technical ritual. If they are interrupted, the spell fails.

The Magic-User can cast spells from the arcane spell list. A Magic-User learns one spell each time they level up, but can find more from spellbooks and spellcasters in the world. When the Magic-User casts a spell, they roll a usage die based on their level as given on Table XX.. On a roll of 1 or 2, the usage die is downgraded, or if the die was a d4 with no subsequent dice, the Magic-User is out of spells until the following day. For levels 7 and up, the usage die "prestiges" and gains subsequent dice; for example, the chain for level 8 is d6>d4>d20>d12>d10>d8>d6>d4.

TABLE XX.: MAGIC-USER SPELLS PER DAY.

6	d20
7	d4, then d20
8	d6, then d20
9	d8, then d20
10	d10, then d20

The Paladin

A noble, righteous, and holy knight, the Paladin is the embodiment of the virtues they hold dear. In turn, the Paladin is granted power to heal and protect the innocent.

The Paladin has the following AV progression:

TABLE XXI.: PALADIN ATTACK VALUES.

Paladin Level	Attack Value (AV)

A Paladin can “lay on hands” to cure wounds. Touching heals d6 damage. Paladins may lay on hands a number of times equal to their level each day.

During combat, a Paladin may selflessly use their body to shield allies by Threading the Needle below their CHA stat and above the HD of any relevant enemies. Until the Paladin’s next turn, this maneuver forces all attacks that would target an adjacent ally to target the Paladin instead.

Starting at level 4, the Paladin can learn and cast spells from the divine spell list. When a Paladin levels up, they pray to their patron and are blessed with 2 spells that the patron chooses.

The number of spells of each level a Paladin can cast per day is listed on Table XXII.

The Ranger

Adept at tracking, scouting, infiltration, and hunting, the Ranger has a uniquely specialized set of survival skills. Their abilities make them equally capable combatants and skilled naturalists.

The Ranger has the following AV progression:

TABLE XXIII.: RANGER ATTACK VALUES.

Ranger Level	Attack Value (AV)

2	11
3	12
4	12

10	15

Once during each combat, a Ranger may declare an enemy their quarry. Singling out an enemy, a Ranger marks them for death and hones their attacks amidst the chaos of battle. Against this enemy, the Ranger adds their level to all damage rolls.

A Ranger can travel effortlessly where others would struggle. Choose a favored terrain; examples include desert, hills, forests, jungle, mountains, plains, swamps, tundra, and so on. When in their favored terrain, the Ranger can travel quickly, track parties effortlessly, travel without leaving a trace, and avoid encountering man. This ability extends to the Ranger’s companions, provided they follow the Ranger’s guidance.

Starting at level 4, the Ranger can learn and cast spells from the nature spell list. When a Ranger levels up, they meditate in nature and are enlightened with 2 spells.

The number of spells of each level a Ranger can cast per day is listed on Table XXIV.

The Warlock

To the unlearned peasant, Warlocks must seem like gods. They have the ability to warp the essential fabric of reality; physics and nature bend to their very will. But there is something decidedly unnatural about having such power. It is said that Warlocks are corrupted by their power, but perhaps these are rumors spread by the untalented mundane world. There are murmurs that Warlocks must make pacts with eldritch nightmares to earn their arcane abilities. Such gossip is dismissed as fancy by Warlocks, but of course it would be.

The Warlock has the following AV progression:

TABLE XXV.: WARLOCK ATTACK VALUES.

Warlock Level	Attack Value (AV)
1	8
2	8
3	8
4	9
6	9
7	10
8	10
9	10
10	11

The Warlock does not learn spells of their own accord. They are given (or blessed, or cursed) spells by supernatural eldritch horrors with no concern for the machinations of man. Each time the Warlock gains a level, in the back of their dreams whispers an ancient being with a snarling cadence and a melodious wail. It has all the answers the Warlock seeks, and more. For a "mundane" task, something truly "trivial," it will grant the Warlock the powers they so desperately deserve. By fulfilling the task, the Warlock gains d5-1 spells from the Necronomicon spell list.

When the Warlock casts a spell, they roll a usage die based on their level as given on Table XXVI. On a roll of 1 or 2, the usage die is downgraded, or if the die was a d4, the Warlock is out of spells until the following day. Note that a Warlock's usage die chain differs from all other usage die chains: d20>d16>d14>d12>d10>d8>d7>d6>d5>d4.

TABLE XXVI.: WARLOCK SPELLS PER DAY.

Warlock Level	Spell usage die
1	d4
2	d5
3	d6
4	d7
5	d8
6	d10
7	d12
8	d14
9	d16
10	d20

The Warlock is not left unscathed from their encounters with eldritch beings. Each time a Warlock levels up and completes their favors to learn new spells, they also gain a Corruption point. Additionally, Warlocks that stretch themselves to breaking and cast more spells in one day than what their body and mind can handle will also take on Corruption points; when a Warlock reaches their daily limit, they may cast additional spells at the cost of one Corruption point and one Corruption check per spell. Corruption can also be earned through horrible and unspeakable deeds not dared written here.

In times of great stress and anguish, a Warlock may be pushed to their limit. The Referee should ask the Warlock to roll a d20 in a Corruption check. If they roll above their Corruption score, they are safe for yet another day (but at what cost?). If, however, the roll ties or is lower than their Corruption score, the Warlock is fully seized by the madness inherent in their terrible art. Such Warlocks will not adventure with their companions any longer. They may be dragged to hell by the demons they once confided in; they may be driven mad and flee to start a cult in a mountain of power; they may attack the men and women they once called their friends before they turn on themselves. It is always a terrible moment.

MAGIC

Magic is divided into four distinct flavors: arcane, divine, natural, and necrotic. Choice of class determines which spells a character is able to cast.

Elves and Magic-Users cast spells from the arcane spell list. These spells have no inherent level; a caster can cast any spell that they know or have access to, and the effects of that spell are scaled based on the level of the caster. Arcane spells are utility spells, able to solve problems and influence circumstances.

Clerics and Paladins cast spells from the divine spell list. These spells are ranked by level; higher level spells are more powerful and can only be cast by higher level characters. Divine spells deal in life and death, good and evil, and the forces of the gods.

Druids and Rangers cast spells from the nature spell list. These spells are ranked by level; higher level spells are more powerful and can only be cast by higher level characters. Nature spells influence the natural world, gaining information from and lording power over plants and animals.

Warlocks cast spells from the Necronomicon. These spells have no inherent level; a caster can cast any spell that they know, and the effects of that spell are scaled based on the level of the caster. Necrotic spells inflict pain and suffering and force enemies to submit to commands and influences against their will.

Arcane Spells

Below is a list of some of the arcane spells in existence. In the following list, " ℓ " is a number equal to the caster's level. Unless otherwise noted, all spells with ongoing effects last up to $\ell \times 10$ minutes, and have a range of up to 40 feet. If the target attempts to resist the spell, the caster must Thread the Needle below their spellcasting stat (INT for Elves and Magic-Users) and above the HD of the target. If they fail, the effects of the spell are reduced or negated.

156 Arcane Spells

1. Adhere: Your touched target exhudes a thick, white, pasty glue. It becomes extremely sticky.
2. Aeromancer: Invoke and control wind up to the intensity of a light breeze.

2. Feeblemind: Revert a mind to that of a child's.
3. Greater Feign Death: A target needs no air, does not age, can withstand extreme environments, and is indistinguishable from dead for up to 8 months.

Level 9 Nature Spells

1. Eternal Spell: The next spell you cast is permanent.
2. Finger Of Death: Reduce a touched target to 0 HP.
3. Reincarnate: Bring back a soul in a random incarnation.

Necronomicon

Below is a list of some of the Necronomicon spells in existence. In the following list, "j" is a number equal to the caster's level. Unless otherwise noted, all spells with ongoing effects last up to $j \times 10$ minutes, and have a range of up to 40 feet. If the target attempts to resist the spell, the caster must Thread the Needle below their spellcasting stat (INT for Warlocks) and above the HD of the target. If they fail, the effects of the spell are reduced or negated.

51 Spells of the Necronomicon

1. Ability Strike: Permanently lose 1 point in a stat of your choice to reduce the enemy HD by d6.
2. Addiction: The target gains a severe addiction.
3. Adjust Memories: Read, erase, or plant memories in a touched target.
4. Age: Others look on in horror as the target ages $j \times 10$ years.
5. Agony: Target experiences wracking pain, unable to act for j rounds.
6. Blind: The target's eyes are gouged out.
7. Bloodletting: You open festering sores on your body and bleed midnight blood. Lose $j \times d6$ HP and then heal the target by $j \times d8$.
8. Cannibal Curse: An incredible hunger comes over the target. Food and drink no longer satisfy it. It hungers, until it tastes the flesh of a freshly slain foe.
9. Command: The target obeys a three word command that does not harm it.
10. Compulsive Liar: The target is unable to tell the truth.
11. Consume Mind: The caster eats the brain. They have a 25% chance of gaining the brain's knowledge/spells.
12. Consume Strength: The caster eats the flesh. They gain d4 STR, DEX, and CON.
13. Create Undead: Turn a corpse/skeleton into undead.
14. Curse Of Worms: When the target takes damage, a swarm of worms pours forth from the wound. The worms act as a swarm and attack mindlessly.
15. Deafen: All nearby creatures are deafened.
16. Death Mark: If a chosen creature dies before the end of your next turn, you gain $j \times d6$ HP. If not, they gain $j \times d6$ HP.
17. Death Mask: You touch a corpse and the face peels off like a mask, while the rest of the corpse quickly rots into dust. When you wear the mask, you will look and sound like the person whose face you're wearing.
18. Death Scythe: The corpse disintegrates as you pluck a weightless black scythe (2d4 damage) from its core. It does double damage when attacking creatures of the same type.
19. Death Throes: If the touched target dies in the next hour, its body explodes, dealing $j \times d10$ damage. The body is irrecoverable.
20. Desecrate: In an area, undead have 1 more HD.
21. Elemental Blast: An explosion of flame, electricity, ice, water, or other element detonates with a low roar and deals $j \times d6$ damage.
22. Erase: You erase a small object from time. No trace remains and any memories of its existence are altered to reflect that it never did. History is rewritten to explain its absence. The smallest possible changes that provide a plausible explanation are used.
23. Feast of Ashes: The target feels as if they are starving for j days but will not die. Eating food causes horrible nausea.
24. Forgettable: After you leave their sight, anyone who has seen you for less than j rounds will forget you.
25. Healing Thief: Any time the target is healed, you steal half the healing.
26. Hold Person: Paralyze d4 targets. Roll each round to maintain the hold; the effect lasts until the roll fails.
27. Isolate: The target cannot be seen or heard by their allies.
28. Lover's Quarrel: The target's most beloved person takes $j \times d6$ damage, wherever they may be. The target feels their loved one's pain.
29. Lycanthropy: The target is cursed with lycanthropy.
30. Magic Missile: An unerring eldritch blast deals $j \times d4$ damage (no roll needed to hit).
31. Masochism: Calculate the caster's max HP - current HP. This number is dealt as damage to the target.
32. Meat Servant: A blob of dead meat forms into a helpful servant for j hours.
33. Meld: Two targets are fused together.
34. Memory Wipe: The target forgets everything in the last j rounds.
35. Mental Killswitch: Create a trigger that will kill the touched target if their mind is tampered with in a specific way.
36. Mind Swap: Permanently switch minds with a touched target, retaining mental stats and swapping physical stats. Both parties roll a CON save or fall into a coma.
37. Negative Energy Zone: No healing can occur in an area.
38. Nightmare: The target cannot sleep for j days.
39. Overkill: An intense blast of $j \times d12$ necrotic damage strikes the target. The caster takes $j \times d6$ damage. If the target is reduced below 0 HP, the excess damage is done to the caster.
40. Preserve Organ: The caster preserves a severed organ from a creature so that it does not rot or decay.
41. Putty Flesh: When struck by a mundane weapon, you may sacrifice an additional d4 HP to fuse your flesh with the weapon temporarily, making it impossible for the wielder to dislodge it. The effect lasts for d4+1 rounds per damage originally inflicted.
42. Raise Spirit: For a favor, a touched corpse's spirit appears and answers j questions.
43. Sadism: All damage done by the caster in the next round is added to all their stats for j rounds.
44. Selectively Mute: The target cannot communicate a specific piece of information.
45. Soul Shackle: The caster draws out the soul of a dead creature and imprisons it within a gem.
46. Thick of It: Your melee attacks do 1 extra damage for each enemy within striking range of you.
47. Transmogrify: Turn the target into an insignificant creature.
48. Vampirism: The target is cursed with vampirism.
49. Willing Sacrifice: The target submits, allowing the ceremonial dagger to pierce their heart. As the life leaves their body, a terrible beast is summoned.

50. Wither: A touched body part shrivels and falls off.
51. 100 Yard Strike: The caster can make a melee attack at any target within sight.

Using Scrolls and Wands

Spells can be transcribed into scrolls or infused into wands by people called Spellcrafts. Scrolls are one-use castings of a spell, while wands have usage dice or explicit charges. Any class of any level can use any scroll or wand. The user of the scroll/wand uses their own stats to Thread the Needle, if the spell requires it. If the spell inside the scroll/wand is levelless but its effect varies on the level of the caster, use the level of the Spellcraft at the time of the scroll/wand's creation to cast the spell.

To create a scroll or wand, the Spellcraft must perform the following steps. First, they must know the spell. Second, if the spell has a level, they must invest 100 gold per spell level. If the spell is levelless, they must invest 100 gold per their class level. Third, they must invest 100 gold per charge. Scrolls have 1 charge, while wands have no limit beyond what gold is spent. Finally, they must successfully Thread the Needle. If the spell has a level, Thread the Needle below their spellcasting stat and above the spell level. If the spell is levelless, Thread the Needle below their spellcasting stat and above their class level. If Threading the Needle fails, the Spellcraft loses the gold invested, but can spend time to study the spell further and retry creating the scroll or wand later, this time with Advantage on Threading the Needle. Any caster can be a Spellcraft, but spells from the Necronomicon cannot be made into scrolls or wands.

ADVERSARIES

For generating monsters, traps, and other obstacles quickly, all the Referee needs to do is determine the entity's difficulty level, given by the number of HD they have. This determines the number a character must roll above when Threading the Needle in a roll against the adversary.

A monster's health is HDd8, or, on average, 4.5×HD. If a monster has less than 1 HD, it has 1 health. A typical monster's damage is given in Table XXVII., though special monsters need not deal damage as described there. Monsters can have multiple attacks.

TABLE XXVII.: MONSTER DAMAGE.

Monster HD	Damage
1	d4
2	d6
3	d8
4	d10
5	d12
6	2d6
7	3d4
8	2d8
9	4d4
10	3d6
11	d20
12	2d10
13	5d4
14	3d8
15	4d6
16	6d4
17	3d10

Furthermore, Advanced Swords & Sorcery is compatible with monster lists from most old school roleplaying games. Only the HD of a monster is necessary, but a Referee should feel free to interpret and use any and all other statistics given for that monster. Referees should be compelled to add interesting and surprising effects or quirks to monsters to make them unique; an HP sponge is rarely an enthralling foe. Below is a list of monster ideas.

66 Monsters and Ideas

1. Assassin: Stealthily tracks and eliminates a single target.
2. Bahamut: Holds the universe on its back.
